

ABSTRACT:

Managing addresses to be assigned to users of an IP network is described, in which it is detected that a packet has been addressed to a released address held in a queue for holding released addresses, and the held address to which the packet has been addressed is returned to the end of the queue.